View Body; Murder
Theory Scouted Here

CHICAGO, July 28.—The body of the woman found lying along the bathing beach in Rogers park with a bullet in her forehead was positively identified this afternoon as that of Miss Alice Lees of Alma, Wis. Her brother Edward Lees, accompanied by a friend, visited the morgue and made the identification. The police say that Mr. Lees is satisfied that his sister committed suicide because she was despondent over ill health.

Alice Lees, found dead on the beach at Rogers park, Chicago, last Friday evening, was not the victim of a murder, but a nervous, discouraged woman for whom life had proved too hard—and so she ended it.

Her last dollar went for an automatic pistol and she sold for 25 cents the old wedding ring her aunt had given her as keepsake, telling the man that this small sum was "all she needed." She did not even try to conceal her identity when she went into Siegel & Cooper's great store and purchased the Harrington & Richards automatic revolver. The clerk got the record "Miss E. Lee, Elmo, Wis.," but there is no doubt she said "Miss A. Lees, Alma, Wis.," for the two are so similar the error of the clerk in jotting it down would be natural.

La Crosse Man's Sister
The unfortunate girl was a sister of Attorney Andrew Lees of La Crosse. Attorney Lees saw her six weeks ago at the family home in Alma. She was always nervous in disposition and high strung. She studied at the University of Chicago and had taught school. She went to Minneapolis and was engaged on the

PARTY PLEDGES
REDEEMED SAYS
MORRIS TODAY

Lieutenant Governor Declares
Legislature Kept Faith with People by Fulfilling Pledges

SENATE WAS NOT DILATORY

Bosshard Tells of Big Bills
Enacted Into Law and Says the Legislators Worked Hard

That the 1913 legislature, which ended its session Saturday, redeemed all of its republican platform pledges, as has been the custom of recent years, was the declaration this morning of Lieutenant Governor Morris who returned to La Crosse Saturday night.

When interviewed this morning Mr. Morris was ornamented with a beautiful stickpin, a gift from the members of the senate. The pin is a beautiful pearl surrounded by a cluster of diamonds. Incidentally Mr. Morris announced that the close of the session ended his work with the legislature and that for the next twelve months he intends to confine himself closely to his law business and not touch politics.

"All things considered," said the lieutenant governor, "I think the session just ended was one of the hardest working of any I've ever known about."

More Work Than Politics
The impression that politics was the principal occupation of some of the members has no foundation in fact. The few who did try to play politics got little support from the members generally and from the legislature.

"Without a doubt the biggest accomplishment on the part of the legislature was the passage of the water power bill. The measure was so framed that it ought to promote development on a large scale in Wisconsin and at the same time reserve to the people the absolute power of control of water power development and right to take them over whenever the state is ready so to do. Thus there is preserved for the people at least one great natural resource."

Next Year All Work
The next year is to contain nothing but good, hard law work according to Mr. Morris.

"How does it feel to be home again, governor, and by the way, when will your campaign for the United States senate start?" queried a reporter.

"To tell the truth it feels mighty good to be home and in the harness again," was the answer. "The close of this session ends my work with the legislature for good. I expect to devote every minute to the law business and try to make up for lost time."

So far as the senatorial campaign is concerned, I am not going to touch it for a year and if anybody mentions the subject to me for a space of twelve months there'll be 'wigs on the green."

Morris Lauds Bosshard

Mr. Morris also took occasion to pay a high tribute to the work of Senator Bosshard in the legislature. Mr. Bosshard, incidentally, took a leading part in behalf of the water power bill, the 'one day rest in seven' bill, which was defeated by the interests, and other progressive measures.

"When the session began," said Mr. Morris, "it was evident that Bosshard would become one of the leaders in the senate and legislature. But as time went on it became evident that he was not one of the leaders but the real leader. A close of the session he was regarded as the undisputed chief of the progressive forces in the senate and the strong man of the entire legislature. This should be a source of satisfaction to this senatorial district and no doubt will be as the fact becomes known and his standing fully appreciated."

Labor Unions Pleased
That La Crosse labor unions are pleased with the work of this legislature and that their chief cause for satisfaction is in the fact that attempts to change or modify the workmen's compensation act were frustrated, was the declaration of John Rae, local organizer for the unions, today.

"Of course we were sorry to see the 'one day rest in seven' bill defeated," said Mr. Rae this morning. "This is the measure for which Mr. Bosshard put up such a hard fight, and which was defeated by a close vote."

"Under the provisions of that bill every railroad man, fireman and other worker would have at least one day of rest out of every week."

YOU BOYS AND GIRLS BE SURE TO GET IN THE MOVING PICTURES WEDNESDAY

It's the first chance La Crosse boys and girls have had to get into the "movies." Perhaps it will be the last.

Ask papa and mama if you may march in the parade and have your picture taken.

And you, fathers and mothers, tell the children they may go, even if they don't ask you.

The children can drop out of the parade as soon as the pictures are taken, if they want to; they need march only from Market square to St. Joseph's cathedral; the pictures are taken as they pass the Majestic theater.

President Luening, of the board of education, invites the children to get into the parade and have their pictures taken. He thinks it is a good thing to have the little ones represented in the moving pictures of La Crosse.

We all see moving pictures, every week or so, but we have never before had a chance to be in them. It is a splendid chance to let the children see how these wonderful pictures are taken.

It seldom happens that the children have an opportunity to help "boost La Crosse." If they get into this picture they will be "boosting La Crosse" for the pictures will show outsiders what a fine lot of children we have here.

Every citizen, every institution, every industry, every civic organization in the city should be represented in this parade.

Get ready! Be at Market square before 8:30 Wednesday morning. Just to show what we think of it, the entire Tribune force and staff will be in line.

BIG TURNOUT FOR CIVIC PICTURES

Municipal, Commercial and Industrial Life of City to Be Seen in "Movies" Says Taggart

LABOR IS TO BE REPRESENTED

Trades and Labor Council Working to Have Every Union Represented; Children to March

The parade that is to precede the annual grocers' picnic and which is to be taken in moving pictures will be one of the biggest events in years according to Secretary Harry Taggart, who announced today that every civic, commercial and industrial phase of the city's life will be represented.

The makeup of the parade was decided upon this morning. Labor is also to be represented, according to Joseph C. Wolford, president of the Trades and Labor council, and that organization is making a big effort to have every La Crosse union represented.

"I think Mr. Taggart's moving pictures one of the best plans for advertising La Crosse that has ever been conceived," declared Mr. Wolford today. "And I hope that every union will be represented."

Mr. Taggart announced today that the parade will leave the market square at 8:30 o'clock sharp Wednesday morning and after making a tour of the downtown streets will pass the Majestic theater where the moving picture machine is to be located. From there they will go straight to Myrick park where the grocers plan a day's frolic.

BOY STEPS ON RAKE LOCKJAW DEVELOPS

Kemp Engleman, Junior at High School, Suffers from Dangerous Illness

ANTI-TETANUS SERUM SAVES

Treatment Administered on Thursday Leaves Him Very Weak but Safe

Kemp Engleman, 1330 Vine street, 15-year-old son of Professor James O. Engleman of the Normal school is suffering at his home from a case of lock jaw. The boy has been a carrier for the disease during the summer months. He stepped on a rusty rake in the yard of one of his customers Thursday afternoon July 17.

The boy was hurrying over his route and did not notice the rake that was concealed in the grass of the front yard of the residence. As he stepped on it, one of the prongs sank deep into the flesh of the right foot. Although the wound was painful it was not considered dangerous by his parents. They treated the wound at home until last Thursday when symptoms of the dreaded disease appeared, and Dr. J. A. Rowles was summoned.

After examining the young man's condition Dr. Rowles decided that a specially prepared anti-tetanus serum would have to be injected in the veins to save the young man's life. Although the suffering has been intense Dr. Rowles says he will recover. The serum has added to the weakened condition that has rendered his body practically useless since the disease was first discovered.

Kemp Engleman is a student of the High school, in his junior year.

TWO TAKE MERCURY

MONTGOMERY, Mo., July 28.—A sixteen-year-old widow, Mrs. Slavens, of Jonesburg, took bichloride of mercury to end her life because her mother refused to give her consent for her to wed Wesley Sherman, aged 17 years. Her mother was so displeased at the outcome of her first marriage, when she was only 15, that she could not consent for her to try it again under age.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 28.—Because Frank Dubois refused to take his wife to a picnic and did not explain that it was a stag affair, his wife took bichloride of mercury and is slowly dying.

STORM CAUSES LOSS

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., July 28.—Half a million dollars was the estimated damage done by the storm that swept through Northern Wisconsin late today night. Houses were unroofed, trees and telephone poles blown down and four persons were reported slightly hurt. The greatest loss was to growing crops.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 28.—Because her husband refused to take her to a picnic Mrs. Bertha Kler, 28, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid.

JOHN WILLING'S BROTHER WRITES OF MEXICAN RAPINE M. I. VOUGHT URGES INTERVENTION UPON JOHN J. ESCH UNITED STATES OFFICIAL SHOT BY HUERTA SOLDIERS

PUNISHMENT OF
DIXON ASSAILANTS

Ultimatum from Washington Causes Immediate Arrest of Men Who Did Shooting

MINIMIZE GRAVITY OF SITUATION

Administration Inclined to Place Blame for Mexican Disturbance on the Press

EL PASO, Texas, July 28.—That a constitutionalist attack on the city of Juarez was the direct result of the shooting Saturday of Charles B. Dixon, United States immigration inspector, was the belief here today following a report that "Pacifico" Villa and several hundred rebels are marching there. The constitutionalists, seeing in the incident an opportunity to gain favor of American people, are said to be planning to undertake avenging the attack and the implied insult to the American government.

U. S. Ultimatum.
That the international situation is critical as the result of the incident is not doubted. For the first time since the present revolution started, the American government has issued to the Mexican authorities a demand couched in the language of an ultimatum. Dixon, who was made the victim of the notorious "Ley de fuga" and shot twice through the back after federal soldiers had arrested him in Juarez, is in a hospital in El Paso. Dr. J. W. Tappan, who is attending him, declares he will recover.

He was removed to the American side of the border after Consul General Edwards, American representative, demanded in no uncertain language arrest and trial of the men arrested for shooting him. The demand concluded: "My government will hold the military authorities of Juarez personally responsible for failure to obey this command."

This demand brought the announcement from Col. Castro, in command at Juarez, that Arthur Walker, the negro Dixon was investigating when he was shot, and the soldiers who had arrested Dixon had been taken into custody.

Without Provocation.
Dixon in the hospital today repeated his statement made Saturday that he had been shot without provocation. He was investigating white slavery charges against Walker, he said, when the federal soldiers in Juarez arrested him.

While they were taking Dixon to the barracks at the outskirts of the city, where scores of persons have been executed since the revolution started, Dixon ran. The soldiers fired several times at him, two bullets striking him in the back.

The suggestion that certain developments of the last forty-eight hours in Mexico, including the shooting of immigration inspector Dixon and threats of death to Chas. Bissell and Bernard McDonald, mining managers, held in Chihuahua city, may be part of a deliberate plan to force the hand of the United States, was being given serious consideration in official circles today.

Mexico overshadowed all else here in the capital. It was the subject of a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan early in the day, and at 2:30 the president and Ambassador Wilson were scheduled to take up serious consideration of the latter's official report.

None of the only three men who actually know the outline of the plans which this government is considering to bring order out of chaos in Mexico—the president, secretary of state and ambassador—would discuss the matter.

Blame Press Agitation.
There is no more necessity for intervention by force in Mexican affairs today than there was a month ago. The situation continues serious but it is still far from critical. It is made very plain today from an official source that President Wilson believes much of the present agitation is due to newspaper manipulations. Certain newspapers and persons whose relatives are in the troubled zone, are alone responsible for the increased feeling of apprehension. And the president, it can be stated on unquestioned authority, intends continuing his investigation in a "big brotherly" manner which has not yet taken into consideration "force of arms."

On the eve of his conference with Ambassador Wilson, the president today was said to be far from pessimistic on Mexican affairs.

U. S. GOVERNMENT SHOULD INTERVENE
AND END TROUBLE

Former La Crosse Man in Letter to Esch Even Suggests Annexation to Solve Mexican Fuss

IEWS SENT TO PRESIDENT

M. I. Voight Calls Huerta Butcher and Takes Issue with Ambassador Lane on Mediation Idea

That President Wilson should not be swayed by the views of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson in regard to Mexican affairs, that President Huerta is a "butcher" and should not be recognized and that this government should intervene at once in the warring country are some of the views expressed by M. I. Voight, writing from San Antonio, Texas, to Congressman John J. Esch. Mr. Voight even intimates that annexation by the United States would solve the difficulties.

Mr. Voight is the former La Crosse man who, with his wife and family had difficulty in escaping from the revolution ridden country during one of the outbreaks. He is head of the El Celeste Irrigation company, S. A.

Voight's letter has been given serious attention by Mr. Esch and the original sent direct to President Wilson at Washington with a letter of explanation from the congressman.

Ambassador Wrong

"It is very gratifying," writes Mr. Voight, "to all conscientious, right thinking people of whatever nationality, to know that the administration at Washington is determined that there shall be no recognition of the 'Butcher' Huerta as president of Mexico. For fear that extraordinary pressure may be brought to bear upon the administration upon the arrival of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, I wish to give to you my impressions, and you may take them for such value as you see fit."

"To those of us who are in position to know the feelings in Mexico, it is hard to understand how the administration holds out so long in failing to recognize the belligerency of the constitutionalists. One thing certain, the wavering and vacillating manner of handling the question is working great injury to all Americans and their interests down there. The fact that the belligerency of the constitutionalists is not recognized by our government, makes us the subjects of attack and abuse by the constitutionalists. That our government does not recognize the present regime in Mexico, makes of us subjects of abuse by the Huertistas or so-called federalists. Thus we are between the devil and the deep blue sea. Whichever way we turn we are held in contempt. From this you will understand the urgency that something be done to define our position in an unmistakable manner."

Mr. Voight then takes exception to the common claim that American interests who appeal to Washington for aid are actuated by selfish motives. He explains that their business is tied up there and is entitled to the protection asked.

Taking up the question of annexation Mr. Voight says:

"It is argued that the United States should never intervene in Mexico, for the reason that we would have nothing to gain. Mind you, I am not suggesting that we intervene for selfish reasons, but I do wish to controvert the idea that we would be the losers by taking over Mexico. It is a land capable of taking care of more people than the United States at the present time sustains. We might better have said that the United States had no business with the Louisiana Purchase, or with Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. I believe you will agree with me that one of the greatest speeches that that wonderful orator, Daniel Webster, ever made was against the acquiring of what is now California. Yet, we have today those who are asking what would we ever do with Mexico?"

BOAT MYSTERY CLEARED

CLEVELAND, July 28.—The mystery which surrounded the discovery of the sloop "Ripple" adrift in Lake Erie, without crew, amply provisioned and carrying full sail, was solved today after it had given rise to grave fears for the safety of its passengers and caused an all night search by the authorities. The owner of the boat, Carl Huels, and a companion, went sailing Saturday and stopped at a friend's house on the lake and while they were visiting the yacht disappeared. Huels said today the surf and wind had freed the boat.

A Word of Precaution.

JUST wherein lies the reason for the use of vegetable preparations for infants and children?

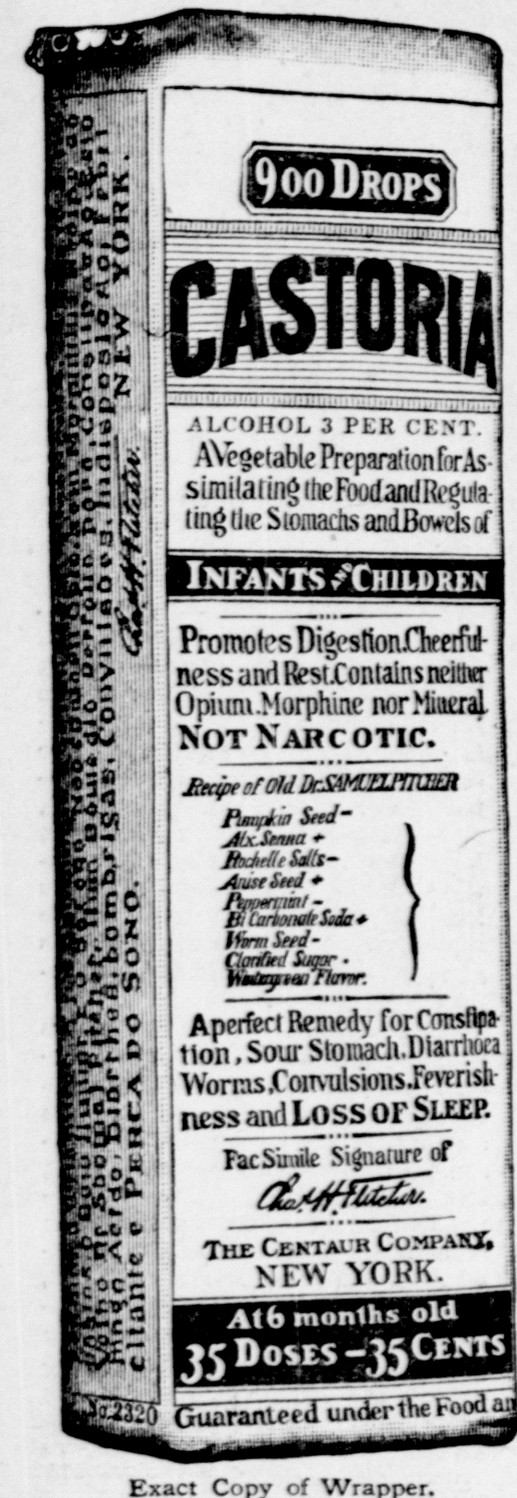

Why are any but vegetable preparations unsafe for infants and children?

Why are Syrups, Cordials and Drops condemned by all Physicians and most laymen?

Why has the Government placed a ban on all preparations containing, among other poisonous drugs, Opium in its variously prepared forms and pleasing tastes, and under its innumerable names?

These are questions that every Mother will do well to inquire about.

Any Physician will recommend the keeping of Fletcher's Castoria in the house for the common ailments of infants and children.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

S. J. Briggs & Co., of Providence, R. I., say: "We have sold Fletcher's Castoria in our three stores for the past twenty years and consider it one of the best preparations on the market."

Mansur Drug Co., of St. Paul, Minn., says: "We are not in the habit of recommending proprietary medicines, but we never hesitate to say a good word for Castoria. It is a medical success."

Hegeman & Co., of New York City, N. Y., say: "We can say for your Castoria that it is one of the best selling preparations in our stores. That is conclusive evidence that it is satisfactory to the users."

W. H. Chapman, of Montreal, Que., says: "I have sold Fletcher's Castoria for many years and have yet to hear of one word other than praise of its virtues. I look upon your preparation as one of the few so called patent medicines having merit and unhesitatingly recommend it as a safe household remedy."

HIS EYE TEETH

By WALTER MFC. WILLIAMS

There was nothing the least not subtle in the Waldron method. This was not surprising when you consider that fate had burdened the family with four daughters, who, each and several, were keyed in a discouraging medium. They were neither ugly nor pretty, fat nor lean, short nor tall. Notwithstanding this they were not as like as the proverbial peas in a pod. Contrariwise, they ran aggravatingly the whole gamut of complexions, hair and eyes. Sarah was black-eyed. Ellen boasted a fiery poll, freckles, blue eyes, and a snub nose. Grace was in a sort, no-colored—had hair, eyes and skin of pretty well the same piece of pale indeterminate brown, whereas Maria was flaxen.

There were like differences in figure. Consequently the problem of dressing the four with none too much money in hand, was correspondingly complicated. What wonder that Mrs. Waldron was open and eager in husband hunting. Unwise of her, perhaps—but necessity knows as little wisdom as law. She had brought her girls up to marry—early and often, if need were. Indeed, it is hardly too much to say the family motto was, "Let no eligible man escape." Yet strangely enough, the Waldron sisters were, in the role of Diana, distinctly misfits. Sarah, for all her mother's help, had let slip three excellent chances before she landed a missionary, and made her family realize concretely the consolations of religion.

Everybody regarded Ella's case as hopeless—no man would be reckless enough to dare the temper such harp presaged. There everybody reckoned without Ella and her inner consciousness. It was made up firmly to matrimony—even if it had to be on the principle neck-or-nothing.

When Silas Penn lost his wife and wept her a solid week, Ella rose to the opportunity—sat down by him at prayer meeting and let him weep openly on her shoulder. She walked him home with her—she was limp as a rag spiritually. Before he got away she had an understanding with herself—in a fortnight she had made him a party to it, and in another fortnight had married him.

After that those who had scoffed came to a degree respectful. Maybe, after all, Sister Waldron's way was best for her flock. But when Grace missed in turn, the circuit rider, Lawson's new clerk at the store, and Billy Dorris, who was reading medicine with old Dr. Quale, heads were shaken, tongues wagged afresh—especially over Billy. He was really worth while—had ten thousand coming to him from his father's estate when he was twenty-five, to say nothing of expectations from two maiden aunts. And he had at first seemed the surest of sure things—had spent all his Sunday evenings at the Waldron house, never eating less than nine biscuits at tea, and saying they were "heavenly," especially when informed that Grace had made them.

He had stopped—suddenly—with no sort of explanation. Everybody else had explanations in plenty—it was his mother, his aunts, the trustees, his grandmother—it was a girl back home—it was another girl you side the county—it was the Waldron temper—Ella had been leading poor Silas a dance, indeed, since her twins came! It was the missionary connection—it was prohibition—Pap Waldron stood up strenuously for a free man's right to drink. It might well be forgiven him, since it was the only thing he had ever been known to stand up for.

These are but samples. Truth would have stricken the explainers momentarily dumb. For truth was—Mrs. Waldron herself. She could upon occasion be Spartan. She wanted Billy for son-in-law very badly—but she did not want a leftover on her hands. Unless he took Grace, after all that had come and gone, her chance of getting a husband was practically nil. She had made herself a spectacle about him—hadn't he given her reason to do it. Now, when his vagrant fancy had turned to Maria, with her yellow-white hair, her milk-white skin, her lips and pouting, kitten-y ways—he couldn't have her. No picking and choosing in her family—thus Mother Waldron—the Lord had sent her daughters in the order pleasing to Him. She meant to see to it they were married in the same sequence.

When this had been said plumply to Billy he got very red, then white, angry, swearing he would rather die than marry Grace, yet would die if he might not have Maria. Maria was younger by five years—quite young enough to wait, though now nineteen. She only giggled when Billy went to her fuming and begged her to run away—they could marry out of hand. "O! I can't! It—it wouldn't be totting fair with Grace. I see her side of it might plain."

"I wish you saw mine," Billy began hotly.

Again she giggled. "If you had real good sense there wouldn't a-been the least trouble," she said sagely.

Billy sat up dumfounded; it was as though a real kitten had ventured upon criticism and counsel. "I don't understand," he said stily.

Marie tossed her head. "Men are so dumb," she confided to the air. "Come here, stupid! Close. Now—I'll whisper."

So said, so done. In a little while Billy went off, also giggling. That night he took the train—not to reappear at Midlands for a matter of six weeks.

He came—to find himself clean supplanted. Mr. James Cope, a traveling salesman of pretty well everything from real estate—in Florida—to lightning rods and underwear, had dropped down upon Lawson's, said he liked the looks of the country round about well enough to spend a month there, had got a boarding place—and in three days began courting Grace Waldron. It is easy, catching hearts in the rebound, even when they are well seasoned.

The Sunday that Grace walked into church wearing Mr. Cope's ring—diamond, if a bit off color—her mother was happy enough to shout. But she kept quiet, merely smiling condescendingly at the doubters. Indeed, such an era of good feeling set up, even Ella felt it—and let Silas smoke in peace that whole afternoon. When her gossip, Mary Brown, asked meaningfully, "D'ye think patchwork'd look out o' place fer a weddin' present?" she answered with a smile, "I think it would be just the thing. Jimmy—Mr. Cope—loves patchwork. But you oughter hear him about the biscuit—says if Grace couldn't do nothin' but make 'em she oughter have a crown in this world and a harp in the next."

"Is the day set?" Mary Brown asked.

Ella shook her head, saying: "He vows he won't wait no longer'n Christmas—but can't get back much before then."

"Maybe he'd manage to get back—if he knew about Billy Dorris," Mary commented musingly.

"Billy Dorris! Grandmother!" Ella answered severely. "Who'd take up with a lad-boy like him when they had the chance of a real man?"

Who, indeed? Not Grace! She wore her diamond even when making her biscuit. Yet, when Billy reappeared, she was the least bit stiff with him. Indeed none of the family seemed over cordial, on the surface. But papa Waldron went to his horse with him and there whispered beamingly: "Ye've got a great head Billy. Hurry up though! I shan't draw a real easy breath till ye've made the rifle with Maria."

Billy's conscience was not quite easy until after he had a heart to heart talk with Cope. Then he wanted to whoop and slap himself with joy. For J. Cope, the iron clad, who had agreed—for a consideration—to make love to Grace, thereby holding her in leash until Billy could carry off Marie—stuck his hands in his pockets, shut one eye tight, winked

FILIBUSTER WEARS DOWN DEMOCRATS

Republican Tactics Weary Majority Into Permitting Discussion

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Wearied by a week of republican filibustering because of the ban upon discussion of Attorney General McReynolds' postponement of the Caminetti white slave case, house democrats today planned to throw up the sponge and end the deadlock by flat capitulation.

Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, who provoked the republican filibuster by refusing to let Representative Kahn of California discuss the Caminetti incident today, down the bars for a wide open debate. Representative McCoy of New Jersey has received a letter from McReynolds stating that he does not object to house discussion of his conduct.

Debate upon the Caminetti affair is scheduled for next Tuesday or Wednesday.

He Was a Circus Trick Horse.

Daddy's Bedtime Story —

The Horse
That Wears
A Switch.

JACK and Evelyn laughed when daddy said he had heard of a horse that wore a switch.

"Dinah wears a switch because she says it makes her back hair look more," Evelyn remarked. "But horses haven't any back hair."

"That's where you are mistaken," daddy replied. "A horse's mane is the hair on his head. But it wasn't because he hadn't enough back hair that Bucephalus got a switch. It was because he lost most of the beautiful long hair out of his tail that he was fitted with one."

"Bucephalus is a trick horse in a circus. He is a fine fellow, with a grayish coat and a handsomely shaped body. His cleverness and beauty make him worth a great deal of money."

"So when an accident spoiled the horse's tail it was noticed that he seemed very sad. He went through his tricks in a half hearted sort of way, and when people petted him or offered him lumps of sugar he did not care about them."

"What's the matter, old man?" the horse's master asked him one day.

"Bucephalus only shook his head sadly and gently waved what was left of a once glorious tail."

"What, old man, are you worrying about that lost tail?" his master asked, patting his favorite.

"And Bucephalus seemed to nod his head. At any rate, the horse's master said that if it could be had his pet should have a tail as handsome as the one he had lost."

"So he went to the very best switch maker in the city, a person who made all sorts of wigs and switches for fashionable ladies. Bucephalus' master told him what he needed and said he didn't mind paying a good price if he got what he wanted."

"He coaxed the wigmaker to come and look at Bucephalus, and the horse at once made friends with him. The wigmaker was pleased and said he would do his best."

"The man was as good as his word. No one knows where or how he got all the beautiful long horse hairs he put into the switch."

"Bucephalus seemed another horse. After he got his new switch tail he cheered up and began to take an interest in life. He seemed to relish his oats and accepted apples and lumps of sugar very graciously. In the circus he was his old gay, clever self and not only went through his old tricks splendidly, but took the greatest interest in learning others."

"And if a switch could do all that for a horse, why should we laugh at poor Dinah for wearing one? Perhaps it makes her happy too."

FLY LARVA CARRIES INFANT PARALYSIS

St. Louis Doctor Advances Theory of Disease which Meets Favor of Brethren

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—Bacteriologists and physicians here are today inclined to accept the theory advanced by Dr. E. W. Sanders and demonstrated by him the infantile paralysis was originally a disease of fowls and that it is transmitted to children by the larvae of the fly.

The theory was first advanced by the doctor two months ago. Since then laboratory tests have proven that all fowls are subject to the disease. A monkey used to demonstrate the deadly effect of the larvae, expired while Dr. Sanders was reciting before the St. Louis Medical society, displaying all the symptoms of the disease that has caused the death of so many children and which for 200 years has baffled medical skill.

All physicians who heard the doctor agreed that if he had at last found the cause of infantile paralysis, a great step had been taken toward fighting the disease.

Dr. Sanders some time ago called attention to the fact that infantile paralysis is prevalent only during the insect season. Then he became impressed with the idea that the disease in chickens known as limber neck was of similar systems.

Dr. Sanders explained that flies, after feeding on the carcass of a fowl deposited their eggs in fruits or on meat and if any child in eating the fruit or meat should swallow one of the larvae, the disease which is so often fatal, is inevitable.

AMERICANS WIN WORLD NET TITLE

Maurice McLoughlin Wins Deciding Match from Briton in Straight Sets

WIMBLETON, England, July 28.—The American tennis team today lifted the Dwight F. Davis cup and the world's championship title now rests with Maurice E. McLoughlin, Harold H. Hackett and R. Norris Williams, who fought their way through the preliminary series, defeating the Australian, German and Canadian teams and then finished their work by overwhelming the English team, which held the cup.

McLoughlin Wins Match.
 It fell to McLoughlin, the young California star, to win the match which clinched the title for the Americans and to him goes most of the glory of the victory. His wonderful playing has been the main strength of the team representing the United States and but for his remarkable work Saturday Roper Barrett and C. P. Dixon would undoubtedly have won the doubles and given the Englishmen a great advantage in the fight to retain the cup.

McLoughlin today met Dixon in the first match of the finals singles. He was at top form and defeated the veteran Englishman in three sets. In the first set Dixon appeared at his best but went down to defeat after the set had gone to duce.

McLoughlin then took the next two sets easily. The score by sets: 8-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Dixon on Defensive.
 Dixon had no chance from the start. McLoughlin's superb service and wonderful smashing kept him constantly on the defensive and the Englishman was helpless before the attack.

America's last attempt to lift the Davis cup was in 1912 when Beals C. Wright, W. A. Larned and McLoughlin played the Australians, then the title holders, at Christchurch, New Zealand. They were defeated in five straight matches.

MAN AND WIFE HELD AS HOBOES

Couple Arrested on North Side After "Beating" Their Way from Portage

A man and woman claiming to be man and wife, who gave their names to the police as Frank and Blanche Williams, aged 33 and 20, of Detroit, Mich., were arrested this morning in a box car in the yards of the Milwaukee railroad at 8 o'clock by Patrolmen Frank Groeschner and Dan Deneen. They had stolen their way from Portage on an extra freight train.

Conductor Jerry Lyman and his crew, who ran the freight into the city this morning from Portage, were told that a couple had left Portage on a freight bound in this direction. The police of Portage searched the yards but were not able to locate the parties. As the freight train neared the north side yards this morning at a little before 6 o'clock Conductor Lyman saw a crowd of hoboies in an empty box car. The car was in the center of the train and the party could be seen as the train rounded a sharp curve. Conductor Lyman is of the opinion that the young woman with the party in the car.

A short time after the arrival of the freight a clerk of the north side office of the company saw a well dressed young man and woman walking down the tracks toward Black river. Tracing them he discovered that they were making their toilet in the stream. They later walked back through the yards and had breakfast at one of the north side hotels on Mill street. Their fearless attitude was the subject of comment and the police were notified. They were arrested in a box car. Several hoboies were with them. These were also arrested.

When questioned by the police at central station after their arrest Williams declared that he and his wife had started some weeks ago from their home on a walking expedition. He said that his wife had become ill in Portage and, as they were low in funds, they were forced to ride in the box car.

They will be held by the police, pending an investigation.

COMES TO RESCUE OF HIS CHICKENS

••••• The desire for a meal of broiled chicken led two tramps giving their names as Thomas Lund and James McMorro, to diverge from the straight and narrow way yesterday morning and steal a fat pullet from the roost of Ole Brown, saloon-keeper near Grand Crossing.

Mr. Brown has a small brood of choice fat chickens which he prizes highly and when some one told him that tramps had stolen one of them, his ire was aroused. He forthwith trailed the miscreants to an improvised "jungle" that they had made and rescued his property before the tramps had time to kill it.

North Side Patrolman Frank Groeschner was called, but his assistance was unnecessary as Mr. Brown had proceeded to take the law in his own hands and administer a thorough thrashing to the bums. Groeschner remarked that an ambulance would be more appropriate than an officer of the law. Both tramps had black eyes. They were taken to central station and will probably have a hearing in county court today on a charge of theft.

••••• The pet dog which last week seriously bit Frank Chopieski, 603 Charles street, was infected with rabies, and the presence of the disease in the animal makes it almost certain that other dogs which he may have bitten will also develop the disease, is the startling information contained in a letter to Dr. S. B. Patterson from the Pasteur institute, Chicago.

Mr. Chopieski was last week rushed to Madison for treatment, in anticipation of the Pasteur people's diagnosis of the malady.

"An examination of the dog's brain," says the letter to Dr. Patterson, "shows the presence of many typical megri bodies, making the diagnosis of rabies positive without doubt."

In discussing the case this morning Dr. Patterson pointed out that north side residents who own dogs should be careful with their animals, watch them closely and warn children not to attempt to pet strange animals.

"It is highly probable that this dog," said Dr. Patterson today, "has bitten other dogs, and it is only a matter of time before the disease will become apparent. People should watch their animals closely."

Mr. Chopieski, it is understood, is doing nicely at Madison and his friends and relatives here believe the prompt attention he received may prevent serious results.

••••• The preference in shoes for afternoon and evening wear is given to white canvas, buckskin, kid and satin. For afternoon, they may be either high-button, tie, or low pump with allured bow. For street wear, the Colonial shoe, with buckle of cut steel or gun-metal, is a prime favorite. For evening, a white or black is good style. Black pumps of kid or satin are ornamented with rhinestone or jeweled buckles; jeweled heels, too, are frequently seen. Stockings, as an item of dress, have reached a place of vast importance. The approved mode is to have hose of a shade similar to the frock or the color-scheme which is seen above them, regardless of the color of the shoes worn. They should, of course, be of silk or net, and may be as elaborate and gossamery as desired or as the purse will permit. For general wear embroidery in mere tracery, or in great floral motifs, is used. Brilliant, gaudy beads and sequins adorn those worn by admirers of the bizarre. Stockings of lace are also in favor with the ultra-fashionable.

The all white hat, suggesting a coolness especially desirable during midsummer, predominates for wear with white lingerie frocks. Panama and Milan straws are most generally seen. The shapes are considerably larger than formerly, and are simply trimmed; the Panama, with a band of velvet or seal of ribbon or silk; and the Milan, with ribbon, wings, flowers, tulle or net. The fashion of edging crown and rim with pleatings of tulle and net is much in vogue, as is the hat whose sole claim to a crown consists of a single thickness of black tulle attached to a rim of black straw. Black grosgrain ribbon fashioned in a bow on the left side is its only trimming.

The new parasols are very odd in shape. Many are straight, like those of the Japanese; others droop well over the frame and are almost cup-shaped. All are very gaudy in color, but the woman of conservative taste is satisfied if the color harmonizes effectively with her costume. A parasol suitable to carry with lingerie frocks is of white mousseline de soie, trimmed with narrow shirred bands of the material.

Service both in accessory and gown should be the keynote of the practical woman's outfit. A tub frock that is really washable is something of a rarity in these days of summer lingerie garments, but such a frock is pictured in the second illustration. The development is in ecru-color figured crepon, with sleeves and guimpe of net, and collar and cuffs of coral-color pongee silk. A girle and tie of Gobel blue ribbon finish a costume dainty and smart enough for any afternoon affair during the torrid days of July and August. The vest blouse is illustrated worn over a guimpe, but, if desired, the sleeves may be attached to the bodice.

Costumes for morning, afternoon and evening must be chosen with consummate care, whether one be debutante on her first socially-established outing, or matron with a distinctive reputation to maintain. The frock of the first illustration will serve every practical purpose for the early hours of the day, whether the vacation be spent at a fashionable watering-place or an out-of-the-way farmhouse. It was developed in khaki-color Ramie linen, with collar and cuffs of figured ratine, in shades of tan, gold and old blue. The addition of a jacket on Russian or Balkan lines will make the outfit suitable for traveling or for wear on cool days.

With this costume a straw hat of tan or similar shade, simply trimmed with flowers, quill or ribbon, also tan gloves, hose and low shoes, should be worn. If one does not care to observe the tan color-scheme throughout, these accessories would be in equally good taste and style in black.

Very attractive for early afternoon wear is the frock with waist and skirt of different tones. Crepe, with figures and motifs of Cubist or Futurist design, makes an effective waist and peplum, which in appearance simulates the jacket. Such a waist, worn with a skirt of similar fabric, and of shade harmonizing with the main tone of the bodice, is both smart and attractive. A ribbon sash of any harmonious shade invariably accompanies such a costume. It is brought loosely twice about the waist and tied low at front, back or side, the ends extending to, or a little above, the knee.

The preference in shoes for afternoon and evening wear is given to white canvas, buckskin, kid and satin. For afternoon, they may be either high-button, tie, or low pump with allured bow. For street wear, the Colonial shoe, with buckle of cut steel or gun-metal, is a prime favorite. For evening, a white or black is good style. Black pumps of kid or satin are ornamented with rhinestone or jeweled buckles; jeweled heels, too, are frequently seen. Stockings, as an item of dress, have reached a place of vast importance. ESSENTIALS OF TODAY'S VACATION OUTFIT

NEW YORK, July 23.—Planning a vacation outfit is not the easiest task in the world. Even man finds it difficult—and if man, with his comparatively simple wardrobe, what of mere woman? If the outfit consisted only of gowns it would not seem so complicated a problem, but in these fastidious days it must include so many accessories, and these must be chosen most carefully and with a keen eye for harmony or contrast. Do you wonder, then, at the quandary in which woman finds herself when this task confronts her? To be sure, even in a town of limited size, a modiste will assume the entire responsibility, but the cost will be increased proportionately. It is out of consideration for this fact, and not from preference, that ninety-nine out of every hundred women choose to be their own modistes.

Figure One.

Costumes for morning, afternoon and evening must be chosen with consummate care, whether one be debutante on her first socially-established outing, or matron with a distinctive reputation to maintain. The frock of the first illustration will serve every practical purpose for the early hours of the day, whether the vacation be spent at a fashionable watering-place or an out-of-the-way farmhouse. Black pumps of kid or satin are ornamented with rhinestone or jeweled buckles; jeweled heels, too, are frequently seen. Stockings, as an item of dress, have reached a place of vast importance. The approved mode

is to have hose of a shade similar to the frock or the color-scheme which is seen above them, regardless of the color of the shoes worn. They should, of course, be of silk or net, and may be as elaborate and gossamery as desired or as the purse will permit. For general wear embroidery in mere tracery, or in great floral motifs, is used. Brilliant, gaudy beads and sequins adorn those worn by admirers of the bizarre. Stockings of lace are also in favor with the ultra-fashionable.

The all white hat, suggesting a coolness especially desirable during midsummer, predominates for wear with white lingerie frocks. Panama and Milan straws are most generally seen. The shapes are considerably larger than formerly, and are simply trimmed; the Panama, with a band of velvet or seal of ribbon or silk; and the Milan, with ribbon, wings, flowers, tulle or net. The fashion of edging crown and rim with pleatings of tulle and net is much in vogue, as is the hat whose sole claim to a crown consists of a single thickness of black tulle attached to a rim of black straw. Black grosgrain ribbon fashioned in a bow on the left side is its only trimming.

The new parasols are very odd in shape. Many are straight, like those of the Japanese; others droop well over the frame and are almost cup-shaped. All are very gaudy in color, but the woman of conservative taste is satisfied if the color harmonizes effectively with her costume. A parasol suitable to carry with lingerie frocks is of white mousseline de soie, trimmed with narrow shirred bands of the material.

Service both in accessory and gown should be the keynote of the practical woman's outfit. A tub frock that is really washable is something of a rarity in these days of summer lingerie garments, but such a frock is pictured in the second illustration. The development is in ecru-color figured crepon, with sleeves and guimpe of net, and collar and cuffs of coral-color pongee silk. A girle and tie of Gobel blue ribbon finish a costume dainty and smart enough for any afternoon affair during the torrid days of July and August. Historic Crimes and Mysteries

The Iron Judge of Malta

ONE night, two hundred years ago, Judge Cambo, of Malta, sat by his bedroom window gazing out upon the sleeping town, which was bathed in brilliant moonlight. Had Judge Cambo not been sitting by his window that night, his name would never have been known outside the island of Malta, which is about eight miles wide and seventeen long, but he couldn't sleep well that night for one reason or another, so he took his seat by the window, and eventually became known all over the world, or wherever lawyers congregate. Thus we see upon what a small peg destiny sometimes hangs.

"Presently the baker beheld the corpse, and stood looking at it, as though dazed."

There is no doubt that Judge Cambo was a man of integrity and ability. Some even hold that he had a conscience. In his youth he was considered sentimental and went so far, upon occasion, as to write poetry. But he took up the study of the law quite early, and the law became an infatuation with him. As the years went on he became saturated with it, so that it took full possession of his soul and mind. He judged everything in the earth and the waters under the earth by his Maltese law, which was somewhat different from that now prevailing, as the island then was under the dominion of the Knights of St. John. In the mind of Judge Cambo, there was perhaps wouldn't have confessed it justice was a small thing as compared with the law. If justice and the law could be made to walk comfortably along the same road, well and good; otherwise, the law had the right of way, and justice must scratch for itself.

So Judge Cambo sat at his window, in the soft Mediterranean night, and as he looked into the street beneath him he saw one man stab another. The wounded man, who had been flying for his life, reeled and fell. At this moment the murderer's cap fell off, and his face was fully exposed to the judge. The judge did nothing. It is possible that he was raking through his mind for a law that would fit the case, and to the street beneath him he saw one man stab another. SAYS MEN BATHERS SHOULD WEAR SKIRT

CHICAGO, July 28.—"Skirts for men bathers, tight or close fitting bloomers for girls—if their figures permit it."

This was the plea of Miss Rosalie Ladova, young woman physician and suffragist who was arraigned in Hyde Park police court today for defying police regulations and going bathing at Jackson park, minus a skirt and wearing tight fitting bloomers of black satin.

"Women cannot swim in skirts and swim properly," said Miss Ladova, who is an expert swimmer. "Anyway, if their figures are sufficiently rounded, they do not need as much covering as men. My costume was incomparably more decent than that worn by men bathers. I was covered from head to foot, but all around were men naked up to their thighs."

"I know mothers who will not allow their daughters to go to the beach because men loiter about in such disgusting costumes. Men should be made to wear the skirts and women allowed to take their plunge in tight or bloomers, just as they see fit."

of persons high in authority and the attributing to the president by a newspaper agency of views he did not entertain are the only things which have complicated the Mexican situation according to the administration.

The president today recognized that conditions might change at almost a moment's notice which would force armed intervention. But he will avoid it if possible and it will be the very last remedy considered.

MRS. ALBITZ DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Mrs. Herman Albitz died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Huebner, 1403 South Fourth street, Saturday night after a long illness. Death came from dropsy. Mrs. Albitz was 63 years of age. She was born in Germany, coming to this country as a young lady and settling in La Crosse. She is survived by two daughters, Sister M. Martina and Mrs. George Huebner, and three sons, John, William and Oscar.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 from the residence and at 9 o'clock from the Holy Trinity church.

DETECTIVE AFTER GERMAN FORGER

Following the publication in The Tribune of a description of Count Max von Werner, nobleman and forger who escaped from the Nebraska penitentiary, Sheriff Weber received from B. B. Wilcox, special officer in the employ of the C. M. & St. P. railway, a request for further details in regard to the man. The letter from Wilcox intimated that he had a clue to the famous crook's whereabouts.

MOTHER'S TEARS HALT CEREMONY

The marriage ceremony of Rose Sady, "belle" of the North side Syrian colony, and Naeck George of Canton, Ohio, was halted for a few minutes yesterday at noon in the St. Elias church when the young lady's mother was being comforted by the bride-to-be. Mrs. Sady said in tearful phrases that she could not see her daughter leave her, as her only son had died some time ago, and this would leave her home without children. Miss Sady almost broke down. The two women were comforted, and the ceremony proceeded.

MAY MUZZLE ALL DOGS SAYS CHIEF

Two Mad Dogs Killed within a Week Leads to Belief Others May Be Running Loose

Chief of Police John Webber announced today that he may issue a general order to muzzle all dogs within the city limits as a result of the discovery that the dog which last week bit Frank Chopleski was mad. The situation was made more tense yesterday when the department was called upon to slay an unknown dog at the Zimmer garage on north Third street.

The dog, frothing at the mouth, was first seen Sunday morning near the Gund brewery by Walter Fisher, who called the police. A search for the canine located him in front of the Zimmer garage. He was shot. The owner is unknown.

In view of the fact that the Chopleski dog was allowed to run loose for several days before he bit his master leads to the belief that the animal may have infected others.

"I intend to make an investigation," declared Chief Webber today, "and if the facts warrant will probably issue an order to muzzle all dogs. I want to warn parents to instruct children not to play with or pet strange dogs and to watch their own animals carefully for indication of the disease."

DR. CALLAHAN BUYS OLD BANK BUILDING

Dr. J. L. Callahan today closed a deal for the purchase of the old National bank building on the southwest corner of Third and Main streets, the lower floor of which is now occupied by the Carhill Coal company offices.

The present lease of the building will not run out for over a year. At the end of this time Dr. Callahan will convert the lower floor into modern stores. The basement which now comes up above the top of the sidewalk will be remodeled and the stores placed on a level with the street.

The building was formerly occupied by the National bank and is one of the oldest buildings in the business part of the city. The second story of the building will be used for offices.

SMALL FIRE IN BARN

A small fire was started this afternoon in the barn of the residence of Charles Brown, 217 North Tenth street when a pile of burning ashes was thrown against it. Fire department No. 1 responded to the call. No damage was done.

COP PUTS COAT OVER THIN SKIRT

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—Philadelphia today frowned upon the transparent skirts and as a representative guardian of the city's morals, Magistrate Tracey told a young woman that if she appeared on the streets again in one of the diaphanous garments she would be sent to jail, although she was released for the first offense with a reprimand.

"But, judge, I only have one petticoat and that was being washed. I wanted to take a walk and did not think I would cause such a disturbance," was the plea of the young woman who refused to give her name.

Policeman Walsh was traveling along his beat when he sighted the young woman and her skirt. He hesitated first between the temptation to flee and the desire to carry out the law.

Bystanders saw him take off his coat and this meant Walsh was getting ready to rush to the rescue of the city. Approaching the young woman he threw his coat about her, shutting off the view given by the skirt, and then escorted her before the court.

DOG ROUNDER IS HIT BY REFORM

NEW YORK, July 28.—Most persons who have entered New York on trans-Atlantic liners know Bum, the famous Boston bull dog of the revenue cutter which meets all incoming vessels. And on behalf of Bum, it is announced today that he is a much changed dog. His eye is clear and his tail steady. Bum is on the water wagon.

Bum is the private property of "Billy" Boyce, of the revenue cutter who recently "got religion," and as a part of his work set out to reform the dog. Bum had a strong taste for beer and being a favorite in ship-ping circles, often reeled unsteadily down the gang-plank after a night out. Bum was also sadly addicted to the tobacco habit. Some days he was known to chew half a plug if he could get it and had a pipe which he carried around in his mouth, although it was never lighted.

All of that is passed now, however. Bum has not had a drink in days and to the best of Boyce's knowledge he has not had a chew. If Bum can worry over the reform wave through the dog days, Boyce said he believed the danger of his young life being sacrificed to the demon rum and nicotine would be averted.

PARTY PLEDGES REDEEMED SAYS MORRIS TODAY

It was a measure that the labor people of the state wanted and it should have passed.

"The fact that attempts to tamper with the workmen's compensation act were frustrated by the progressives is a source of gratification to the unions."

Boschard Epitomizes Session

Senator Otto Boschard made the following comment upon the session:

"The 1913 session of the legislature was a notable one in every respect. More laws were enacted than in any previous session in the history of the state. The number of especially noteworthy enactments will probably likewise equal those of any past session."

"The water power bill, the amended workmen's compensation act, the 'blue sky law,' preventing the sale of bogus stocks; the minimum wage law for women and children; the mothers' pension law, administered by the local magistrates and county judges; the perfecting of the budget system and uniform accounting for all state departments and institutions; a new and stronger state anti-trust act—besides innumerable statutes, all making for enlarged powers of home rule and the granting of wider powers to cities—these together with scores of other statutes stand forth as the big achievement of this session. From such inquiries as have already come the recent water power bill will be copied by practically every state in the country whose problem on the subject is similar to ours, and where the state must legislate as between its own rights on the one hand and the rights of the riparian or the private ownership of the water power site on the other. The water power attorneys frankly admit that this bill cannot be challenged on constitutional grounds."

"Two criticisms concerning this session of the legislature have been given some currency. One, that the legislature has been 'playing politics'; the other, that the session has lasted 'too long.' Regarding the first criticism it may be said that the only politics played by the progressive wing of the party was defensive politics. CITY TO PROSECUTE VIOLATORS OF LAW

Health Commissioner Announces that Warrants Will Be Out for Those Failing to Obey Orders

GENERAL CLEAN-UP IS PLANNED

To Inspect Streets and Alleys in Effort to Compel Obedience to All Health Regulation

The City of La Crosse, through its health department, is starting a campaign to compel citizens to obey to the letter all local and state health laws.

The first step in the "cleanup" campaign came today when Dr. J. M. Furstman, health commissioner, swore out warrants against four property owners for failure to obey two-year-old orders to connect with sewers.

"The people named in the complaints," declared Dr. Furstman, "have had orders for two years to connect with the sewer. The vaults on their places were unsanitary and a menace to public health. They have repeatedly failed to obey our orders."

The state Board of Health insists that the health laws be enforced and in a letter to the city has announced they expect strict compliance with all rules and regulations here.

"The arrest of the local people is to serve two purposes. The first is to compel their obedience to the laws and orders of this department. The second is to serve as warning to others who, in the past, believed they did not have to obey our orders."

Dr. Furstman also stated that this week will see inspection of every alley in the city and that all residents who fail to comply with the ordinance requiring garbage cans will be prosecuted. The state law compelling air tight manure boxes will also be enforced, he announced.

Some people have the impression that legislators are paid per diem. The fact is that our salary is no greater for having served seven months than it would have been had we finished our work in sixty days. The cause of the long session was due to the fact that over twenty-three hundred bills were introduced and each was entitled to a hearing and consideration. Mind you, these bills were not conceived or framed by the members themselves in ninety per cent of the cases. Outside of three bills of a public nature in which I took an interest and which I drafted I intended at the beginning of the session to offer no further bills. However, my constituents about the state solicited my official services in behalf, in addition to these three, of nearly fifty more bills which I introduced 'by request.' These bills covered a wide field but related especially to the powers of towns, villages, county boards and cities.

Floods of Bills

"That the session has been long is true. But the session was not prolonged by the members for the sake of 'enjoying' themselves in Madison in hot weather and putting in seven months of earnest and patient work on a salary that would about defray the collection expenses of the average member. Some people have the impression that legislators are paid per diem. The fact is that our salary is no greater for having served seven months than it would have been had we finished our work in sixty days. However, my constituents about the state solicited my official services in behalf, in addition to these three, of nearly fifty more bills which I introduced 'by request.' These bills covered a wide field but related especially to the powers of towns, villages, county boards and cities.

Special Bills Important

"To me these bills may not have seemed of general importance. To the people and communities who desired them introduced they assumed unusual importance. My point is that to many an outsider or casual observer much of the work of the session seems not a prime necessity, but to those directly interested and affected a so-called bill of local interest often means more than a bill of general or state wide interest.

Expensive to Members

"I might add, in conclusion, this further fact: If anyone thinks that the members were 'loafing' they are badly mistaken. The last four months of the session meant continuous work in both houses from nine in the morning often until eleven o'clock at night, and the windup of the week's work at Madison was followed by an all night trip home in order to attend the one day's private business to be followed by either half day or an all night trip back to Madison to begin the same old grind."

Few complaints have been registered against the assessments as made by Assessor J. E. Keizer. The board of review will be in session four days.

KILLED ON EVE OF JOURNEY HOME

Jay Dutton of Trempealeau Electrocutted in Saskatoon When About to Return

SASKATOON, Canada, July 28.—With but a half day's work left before leaving to visit his parents at Trempealeau, Wis., Jay Dutton, a linesman in the employ of the city was electrocuted here Friday. Dutton had written to his parents telling them that he would arrive today. Instead of the happy reunion planned, the body, accompanied by several members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, will arrive at Trempealeau today.

Dutton was working at the top of a thirty foot pole and is believed to have received the full current of a primary 2,200 volt wire by accidentally touching one end of the wire while holding the other end in his right hand. He was hurled to a cement sidewalk thirty feet below, landing on his head and shoulders.

Two small burns were found upon the body, one on the little finger of the right hand and the other on the thumb of the left hand.

An inquest failed to determine whether death was due to the shock of the current or whether the skull was fractured in the fall. Electricians however believe that he was killed by the shock.

Dutton who was 38 years old, formerly lived at Winona, Minn., and for a short time near Trempealeau. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dutton, reside on a farm near Trempealeau where burial will be made.

ANDREW LEES TOLD OF TRAGIC END IN TELEGRAM TODAY

Minneapolis Journal when her health broke down completely. After that she seemed to grow more and more despondent. She spent some time at Alma, Wis., with her aged mother and then went to Chicago. Her father is dead. In Chicago she had been seeking employment; but evidently had not been successful. That she had contemplated taking her life was indicated by the fact that the pistol was purchased a couple of days before.

On Friday she went to the beach and was seen there by many passers reading a book. It was a copy of "Shirley" by Charlotte Bronte and she had read a part of it, for a letter from her mother at Alma was used as a marker. The letter was addressed to "Dear Alice," and was signed "Ma." The letter was dated July 21, and urged her against undue excitement during the hot weather, telling her "not to look for work until the weather becomes cooler." A second letter, found near the book, signed "Andrew" was partly destroyed, but the part remaining mentioned that the writer was including $10. Her relatives here, who had supplied her needs since her illness, were not aware that she was short of funds, and as she had but to write for what she needed, a morbid frame of mind due to her illness is accountable for her death.

Brooded on Beach

Evidently the unfortunate young woman sat brooding upon the beach for a long time and suddenly possessed with the determination to die, pressed the muzzle of the automatic pistol to her temple and pulled the trigger.

Attorney Lees of this city had the first suspicion that the victim was his sister, when he read in the Chicago papers that "Miss E. Lee, Elmo," had purchased the revolver found beside the body. Mr. Lees said there was no doubt in his mind that the dead girl was Alice, for he often had clerks in stores get his own name Lee and his residence Elmo, instead of Alma. Attorney Lees was aware of the serious nervous condition his sister was in, and that she had been greatly discouraged of late and while the tragic end was never dreamed of, he felt certain the victim was Alice. His brother, Attorney Edward Lees of Winona, Minn., left last night for Chicago, arriving there this morning to complete the identification.

Scout Murder Story

The Chicago police found marks of an evident struggle on the beach near where the body was found, but it is possible that death was not instantaneous, following the shot and perhaps the wounded girl dragged herself over the sand and through the trampled brush before losing consciousness. Miss Lees was unmarried and was 37 years old.

The police of Chicago still insist that the bullet wound in the head could not have been inflicted by the girl, and claim there were no powder marks. Despite this, however, Attorney Lees does not believe that his sister was murdered, but feels very sure that in a fit of discouragement and despondency she ended her own life.

Manager Kelley Here Directing Preparations; Will Try Out Local Hurlers

At a meeting at La Crosse club at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening the directors of the La Crosse team of the Northern league will make preparations for the opening day here, August 5.

C. T. Kelley, manager of the team, arrived at noon today and will await the team here, meantime completing all arrangements; already he has directed that the grounds and grandstand be made ready.

Wegent, the La Crosse shortstop who has been with the team for several days, is out of the game with a sprained ankle, and is resting at home. Safford, the other local recruit, joined the team yesterday at Winona.

When the team opens here for eighteen straight games, beginning with Winnipeg, two new pitchers will be put in. The deals have not been closed, but among the twirlers who will be tried out are two La Crosse men, "Moppy" Anderson of the Clothiers and Saubert of the Summits.

In an interview today Manager Kelley said that the team will be strengthened for a Garrison finish, and that La Crosse fans can bank on good baseball.

ed electric fuses to the bombs. He watched day and night, as they threatened to get him. One night about sixty came in a bunch to demand the place. He waited until they got nicely in range and then he exploded two of the dynamite shells. He only got forty, but they shot him in the hand.

Kill 600 a Day

Well, I stayed on in the City of Mexico nine days. On the afternoon of the ninth day one of the banks allowed the American consul to cash some drafts, and as I had wired for some money before I left Vera Cruz, from one of my houses, I got notice there was $50 there for me, just enough to take me to Tampico. I did not have enough to pay my excess baggage or part of my hotel bill, and as we did not know how much longer the fight was going to last, and the under class was starting a movement to kill all the Americans, I decided to get out at any cost and the best way I could. So I left my baggage and samples in Mexico City and came to Tampico. Here I found lots of old time friends and as the American government is watching the oil interests here pretty well there is, naturally, plenty of business of oil companies drilling and building in spite of the troublesome bandits that rove the woods, and they come to the towns about once a month and demand money; sometimes they kill. Between the federals and rebels they are killing about 600 a day. I am only sorry it isn't 5,000 every day.

Well, I had to look for something to do, and whatever I did I had to do on nothing, as I had no money. While the rest of Mexico is at present dead, Tampico is certainly lively enough. Everybody is getting busy making preparations for the time when the revolution will be over. Forty-six oil companies are drilling and operating here on the Tampico river. Barges of 100 tons get $25 a day in rent; a little old gasoline launch, one like yours, gets $60 for a five day trip. Well, I had to do something for nothing, so I found out there was no building sand or rock here. I got busy. I went up the river and accidentally discovered a large deposit of the finest kind of sand and gravel. So I worked two weeks to get contracts from the Indians for a small sum. I had to take in a rancher, an old man by the name of Stevenson, to put up $500 and it was some work too to pry him loose.

Find Proves Gold Mine

It proved to be a gold mine. I have got every builder in Tampico running after me for sand and gravel. The trouble is the transportation is so high. I am only 37 miles up the river and if I had two barges I could make $2 clear on every ton in hauling alone. As it is I get $1.75 a ton, and the buyer has to pay $3.50 a ton in water haul besides. I have one contract with the Standard Oil company now for 2,500 tons, another with the Pearson company for 2,000, and many little orders of from 300 to 600 tons. I have 80,000 tons in sight and can sell every bit of it as soon as I can find means of transportation. Last week the Texas company turned over a steel barge full of oil on my sand dump right where I load. They will have to get it out of the way or I will get damages against them, as it is now stopping my work. The water raised 20 feet and I had to stop on that account, too.

I had trouble with my workmen—all Indians—and three of them came for me with machetes (big knives) but I ran to the nearest oil well and got a shotgun and made them get out. Now I carry a rapid fire "lugar" and I guess I command some respect around that camp, because I wouldn't hesitate to shoot a half dozen of them the way conditions are at present. There is a fine opportunity to go into the motorboat business here, and barges also. I am going to branch into the building material business.

Don't worry about me. I'll manage to make out some way. I will put this on a Ward line steamer myself and the purser will mail it at New York. Best regards to yourself and father. "Yours, EDWARD."

STRIKERS SULLEN TROUBLE FEARED

Militia Guards All of Michigan Copper Country but the Men Are Ugly

MOB ATTACKS A TROOP TRAIN

Two Soldiers Slightly Hurt and a Store Is Burned by Strikers on Sunday

CALUMET, Mich., July 28.—With guards thrown about the entire strike district and the 15,000 striking copper miners in a sullen mood, it seemed certain to the authorities here this morning that there would be serious trouble within a few hours. The mine operators are making heroic attempts to open their mines this morning, but the men whom they recruited over Sunday are being persuaded in many cases to remain away from work by pickets set by the strikers.

Organized mass picketing on the part of the striking miners began in earnest throughout the mining district this morning. Men in groups of from five to twenty, paraded around all the mines, determined that no work should be resumed. Non-union men also gathered early prepared to work if given a chance.

Yesterday was marked by a fire and an attack on a train carrying militia near Marquette. The fire which burned a store belonging to a merchant who had refused to extend credit to the striking miners is thought to have been started by strike sympathizers but strikers disclaim all knowledge of the origin of the blaze. Two soldiers were slightly injured by missiles when a train on which they were riding was attacked.

Troops were sent today to the district one mile from here from whence came reports that the striking copper workers, who paraded yesterday, had attacked those not taking part in the parade. Several non-union men were badly hurt by missiles before the troops drove the strikers to their homes.

James Waddell, New York professional strike-breaker, now at work here, reported this morning that he had fifty strike-breakers at work at Hancock and could run 5,000 here in 48 hours.

INVITE LOCAL TROOPS

LA CROSSE MILITIAMEN PROBABLY WILL TAKE PART IN PERRY CENTENNIAL SHAM BATTLE AT MILWAUKEE IN AUGUST

Companies B and M, local branches of the Wisconsin National Guard, will probably be in Milwaukee August 6, to take part in a parade and sham battle which will feature the Perry centennial celebration on that day.

Captains John M. Bradley, of Company B and Captain F. H. Fowler, of Company M, received telegrams of invitation last night. A law was passed at the present session of the legislature authorizing the national guard to assist in the celebration.

Captain Bradley said today that the La Crosse militiamen would probably accept the offer, which was made by the executive committee of the Milwaukee celebration. The transportation and living expenses of the troops will be paid for by the committee.

The parade which will be held in the afternoon is expected to have in its ranks practically all of the militiamen in the state. The troops will take part in a sham battle in the evening.

SHERIFF ARRESTS ALLEGED THIEF

The third man out of the noon Northwestern train was spotted by Sheriff John Weber for Harry Martin, an alleged thief for whom he had a warrant. The man confessed his identity when taken into custody. He was charged with stealing $11 from Albert Codoll, a fellow worker at Lyles, Wis. He will be tried today.

MEAT STARTS FIRE SCARE

An overheated pan of meat in the oven of a gasoline stove caused a fire scare that called out Department No. 1 at 1:30 this morning. Smoke pouring from the windows of the home of Frank Bradley, over the Busy Bee, a Third street confectionery, attracted a policeman who turned in the alarm. There was no damage.

INDIAN SKELETONS FOUND BY DIGGERS

What is believed to be an Indian burial ground was discovered by gas pipe layers in the employ of the Gas and Electric company this morning when they unearthed three skeletons between Seventh and Eighth streets on Farnam street.

The men, who were laying gas pipe, found the skeletons to be in good condition. About the bodies were pieces of ancient pottery, arrow heads and other implements of the early American.

HEAT CAUSES DROWNING

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 28.—Driven by the heat to seek relief in a creek, Michael Etzel got beyond his depth and was drowned.

Get Sugar in Other Ways.

It is significant that the nations who consume the most oil and light wines, all of which contain greater or less amounts of compounds of carbon and water, consume the least sugar per capita. The natives of Italy, Greece and Turkey, for example, consume annually but one-twelfth of the amount of sugar per capita that is consumed by the natives of Great Britain.—American Food Journal.

Chicago Grain Review CHICAGO, July 28.—The bulls in the wheat pit today found nothing to encourage them. The Liverpool cable was lower and crop conditions over the northwest were excellent.

Consequently prices were down 1/4c at the outset and suffered further loss of 1/4c to 3/4c in the forenoon.

Corn started firm and 3/4c higher for July and 1/4c up for September. These prices held throughout the morning session, the trade being disappointed because yesterday's rains were only scattered.

Oats was firm and higher at the outset and registered an early advance of 1/4c for July. Later there was considerable selling when corn stopped its upward march and prices dropped to a fraction under last week's close.

Trade in provisions was dull with prices at a trifle higher than last week's close.

The grain list strengthened in the afternoon. Wheat a fraction; corn advanced 1/4c to 1/2c and oats was 1/4c to 1/2c higher.

In spite of lower hog prices provisions closed the day a shade higher than at the opening.

Watching The Scoreboard

During their stay in St. Louis the Giants have discovered that Rollie Zeider has had a piece of bone taken from his foot. Charlie therefore may be able to offer it to the Carnegie museum to be placed along with other famous baseball relics.

Rube Marquard turned his ninth straight victory against the Cardinals. Rain gave him the decision in seven innings. A small ten more wins and he may equal his record of last season.

The Boston Braves outbatted the Cubs eleven hits to seven, but lost the game. Boston managed to muster a rally in the ninth that sent Lavender from the mound, but Cheney held them safe.

The Dodgers totalled 21 hits in the two games against the Reds. Cut-shaw led in the stick work for the day, totaling seven hits in nine times at bat. He connected for two singles and a homerun in the first game, and a home run, double and two singles in the second.

CALL RITCHIE PLUTE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—"Man of wealth" and "not mere sparrer," is the way Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, is described here in an application in the superior court by William Kyne and Lawrence Meehan that a temporary injunction prohibiting their exhibiting pictures of the Ritchie-Rivers battle be set aside. Kyne and Meehan declare that Ritchie's claim the fight pictures will hurt his theatrical exhibit is not well founded.

Another fault with remorse is that it is easily cured, like morning after headaches.

A plan to make the quarantine regulations extend to the bores, gets our vote.

W. B. U. SHUTS OUT HOUSTON PLAYERS

Fred Walters Pitches in Fine Form and Allows but Two Hits

Fred Walters pitching proved too much for Houston yesterday and they were unable to get a man past third, losing to the W. B. U. Athletics 3 to 0. Walters allowed but 2 hits, the first one coming in the seventh inning and the other in the ninth. Not a Houston player reached second until the seventh inning and but one Houston runner got as far as third base. Walter also set down six in strikes, as did also Foss of Houston. Foss also pitched good ball, allowing seven hits, but the Athletics' hits were timely, a single by S. Hackner followed by a triple by R. Hackner scored one run in the fourth inning. In the seventh inning successive hits by Kabat, Fuchsel and Childers scored two more.

The fielding of Kabat of the W. B. U. and Evenson of Houston at third base featured, the latter accepting eight chances without an error.

NAPHTHA EXPLOSION KILLS TWENTY-ONE

MALDEN, Mass., July 28.—Twenty-one employees are missing following an explosion of 200 gallons of naphtha in the plant of the New England Dyeing and Cleaning company here today. The explosion could be heard miles. Blazing oil shot through the air, setting eight other buildings on fire. Four employees, two of them women, escaped uninjured by jumping from first story windows.

All available fire apparatus was rushed to the scene. The burning oil, which was spattered all over the square where the building is located, made the work of the firemen extremely hazardous and several were badly burned.

RETURN FROM TWO STATE CONVENTIONS

Mayor Ori J. Sorensen and Aldermen C. A. Worth, Joseph Bartl, W. P. Roellig, Adam Kroner and Wm. Collins, delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, which was held at Neenah, Wis., July 23, 24, and 25, have returned to the city. Mayor Sorensen says the meetings were most instructive.

Nathan Bradfield, chief of the fire department, has returned from Neenah, where he attended the Wisconsin state firemen's convention. The next meeting of the firemen's convention will be held in Racine, and the League of Wisconsin Municipalities will be held in Madison.

MAJESTICS VICTORS

The Majestics defeated the Doerflinger Baseball team by the score of 9 to 6 yesterday afternoon at Copeland Park. The Majestics claim to have defeated every baseball team in La Crosse outside of the city league, and have issued a challenge to any outside team. Yesterday's game was a fast one, being played in one hour and forty minutes.

DANIELS IN DANGER

PORTLAND, Ore., July 28.—Trainmen here told of the thrilling experience of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Mrs. Daniels and Governor West, when they were forced to pick their way across a canyon, fifty feet deep and nearly 100 feet wide, by the dim light lanterns taken from the train today. Many other passengers were also forced to make the perilous trip because a bridge had been burned out. They were near Isidora, a siding of the Southern Pacific when the bridge was discovered to have been destroyed.

A woman can love her enemies if they will only give her a chance to say horrid things about them.

"JOE BOWLEG" HAS A LAUGHING FACE

Joe Boehling.

Joe Boehling, the latest idol of the fans, has a laughing face that is good to look at. He has recently broken the record by winning eleven straight games. He is popularly known as "Joe Bowleg," and is one of the youngest pitchers in the big leagues, being just twenty. In 1911 he was obtained from Richmond, Va., and after a tryout was rented to the Southern league.

NEW SPEED BOAT AT KEOKUK RACE

Boat that Was Slated to Beat "Baby Reliance" to Compete in Big River Events

KEOKUK, Iowa, July 28.—The "Barnacle," a 20 foot Weckler-Fauber hydroplane expected to be the sensation of the present boat racing season, has been entered in the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association races to be held in Keokuk, August 26, 27 and 28. The "Barnacle" is equipped with a 100 horse power high speed engine and was designed to beat "Baby Alliance" which last year "cleaned" every racing boat in the west. "Barnacle" is built entirely of mahogany and is said to have made a speed of 45 miles an hour in her preliminary trials a few days ago and 55 is expected.

Chairman Charles Hanley of the racing committee has assurance from John J. Ryan, builder of the "Reliance" family of racing boats, that he will sent "Speed Demon Reliance" to Keokuk. This boat participated in the international elimination trials at Huntington bay, winning over all other contestants for the English races, but it was ruled she cannot represent America because her driver, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, is not a naturalized American.

SLABMAN IS DAD

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—MacAllison, the Browns' right hander, is a proud and happy father. Mac will leave his wife and daughter to join the team in the east by the last of the week.

A man sometimes wants sympathy but quarrelling with a woman is no way to get it.

NEW ATALANTA ENTRANT GETS GRACE WHEN SHE PICKS UP "GOLDEN APPLE"

Miss Mildred Anderson.

Miss Mildred Anderson, one of the "wood nymphs" exercises rhythmically in the glen at Sharon, Mass., in "Atalanta's Race," and she stoops to pick up the "golden apple," just as we read about in mythology. The little hamlet of Sharon is becoming the focusing center of all eyes since the fair exponents of Lyro-Rhythmic expression began to disport themselves, arrayed in ancient Grecian garb, almost daily in the shadows of the stately trees.
